Description:

Review "Hakan Nesser returns to the Scandinavian dark and gloom, with a new lead investigator in a murder case where the unexpected trumps the ordinary." —Shelf Awareness

"Gripping." —Kirkus

"In this intelligent mystery, Nesser has chosen to sideline Van Veeteren a little . . . It's the fabulous storytelling and the understated humor that makes this book stand out from the crowd. This simply is great crime fiction." —ScandinavianBooks.com

"Sterling . . . Gallows humor punctuates the solid plot as Munster's introspective musings lead to a surprise ending." —Publishers Weekly (starred review)

Praise for *The Inspector and Silence

"A thrilling investigation."
—Newsweek

"A taut and compelling mystery in a consistently outstanding series."
—Booklist

"[The Inspector and Silence] builds slowly, the grim, haunting plot perfectly suited to the methodical, stoic hero."
—Kirkus Reviews

"This is the stylish, atmospheric crime fiction with a strong moral core from an award-winning author; essential for readers of that genre."
—Library Journal

Praise for Håkan Nesser

"Nesser's novels look for the roots of crime in the ills of society . . . He has seized his chance to create his own dark poetry from these stark materials, and the effect is haunting."
—The Wall Street Journal

"Nesser is a master of suspense."
—The Sunday Times (London)

"Nesser has a penetrating eye for the skull beneath the skin."
—The New York Times

About the Author

Håkan Nesser was awarded the 1993 Swedish Crime Writer's Academy Prize for new authors for Mind's Eye (published in Sweden as Det Grovmaskiga Nätet); he received the best novel award in 1994 for Borkmann's Point and in 1996 for Woman with Birthmark. In 1999 he was awarded the Crime Writers of Scandinavia's Glass Key Award for the best crime novel of the year for Carambole. Nesser lives in Sweden and London.
